DELEGATES PREDICT QUICK AGREEMENTS

5-5-3 and Naval Holiday Plans and Far East Questions to Be Settled Soon.

WASHINGTON DELIGHTED

British Appear to Be Glad of Abrogation of Pact With Japan.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau.

Everybody in Washington associated with the conference, from the delegates to the personal servants engaged by the various foreign missions, seemed happy to-night over the agreement among the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France for the conduct of affairs in the Pacific. It was regarded as the most important step that possibly could be taken by the conference, and one that would be the opening wedge for a complete settlement of all the pending questions, most notably the naval limitation.

Among the British delegation the almost unanimous opinion is that, following the developments to-day, the conference will close rapidly. To their minds, the key log has been removed from the jam and the other problems before the conference will be solved promptly and easily. They confidently expect that Mr. Balfour and the other leaders will be able to leave for England on December 31, as they had hoped.

The British prediction is that the 5-5-3 plan and the ten year naval holiday plan will be drawn up and ready for presentation to an open session of the conference by next Saturday at the latest, and that the pending Far Eastern questions will follow in rapid order. In fact, they considered to-day's proceedings the beginning of the end. As for the treaty itself, the British consider it the foundation of a general scheme for amicable settlement of all Far Eastern questions. While they do not say so openly, it is plain they welcome with joy a way out of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, which has been losing popularity steadily in Great Britain and particularly in Australia and New Zealand.

From the first day they arrived in Washington the British delegation members have been doing all in their power to create public sentiment in favor of any sort of an agreement to which the United States would be a party and which would enable them gracefully to slide out of the pact with the Japanese. They would have preferred a tripartite alliance with England, Japan and America as the signatories. Considering that well nigh impossible, however, they have at all times shown a willingness to take the next best thing, whatever it was, that would enable them to prove they were cooperating closely with America.

The Japanese delegation was also pleased at the adoption of the four Power treaty. They recognized soon after arriving in the United States that the Anglo-Japanese alliance was unpopular, and realized that in view of the conditions there would be a hesitancy on the part of the British Government toward renewing it.

GENTLEMAN'S WORD BY JAPAN ON SIBERIA

Declaration Being Prepared by Tokio Promising Withdrawal of Troops.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (Associated Press).

A "gentleman's declaration" concerning Siberia and the presence of Japanese troops there is understood to be under preparation by the Japanese Government. If present plans are carried out it is believed that the official Japanese declaration may soon announce this declaration to the Washington conference.

As now conceived the declaration will embody Japan's word "as a gentleman" that the Japanese army of occupation in Siberia will be withdrawn when conditions make it possible, namely, as soon as Japan can obtain some "reasonable guarantee" that the lives and property of Japanese residents will be safeguarded and that some protection will be afforded in the Siberian districts adjacent to the frontier of Korea. It is intimated that the Japanese believe such a declaration would "clear the air" as to the Siberian situation, and while it would allow the status quo to continue, it would place Japan on her honor before the world to evacuate the country at the earliest possible moment.

The Japanese forces entered Vladivostok in 1919 following a suggestion from the American Government that the two countries unite in despatching an expeditionary force to permit the proper evacuation of the Czechoslovak troops, who had been fighting with such success in the interior and who desired repatriation. By the spring of 1920 all the Powers except Japan had withdrawn their troops.

Maintenance of the Japanese troops in Siberia has caused a strong movement in Japan against their remaining so long. The opposition party and many prominent newspapers have been demanding withdrawal on the ground that the expedition was costing lives, was involving a huge expenditure of money and was accomplishing nothing.

The Japanese Government has been negotiating with representatives of the Far Eastern Republic of China, seeking to arrange a trade agreement opening up the country, but the negotiations have not succeeded. The Chita representatives are said to have made a commercial agreement conditional upon Japanese evacuation, but the Japanese are reported to have announced that they themselves must be permitted to fix a date of evacuation.

It is not yet known whether the contemplated "gentleman's declaration" will apply also to the occupation of Saghalien province in the northern part of Siberia. The declaration is also believed to be subject to modification before any definite announcement is made.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

A Solid Wall of Fox Skins

IT took four men several days to build the stand on which this collection of over 6,000 white fox skins is displayed. It covers the entire side of a Revillon trading station except the peak of the roof which can be seen at the top. The dark spots are bunches of silver or cross foxes. After the photograph was taken the skins were baled, a hundred to each bale, and transported by sailing boat along the coast for a distance of a thousand miles until the Northern Canadian Railway was reached. The collection was then shipped direct to New York.
